Space-A flights end

Regular space-available travel to Italy and Spain ends, while more seats open for Germany. Page 2

Wine tour

The family support center is preparing a tour for single and unaccompanied airmen to the Biscoitos Wine Festival from 12:30-6 p.m., Saturday. Center officials said the bus will leave at 12:30 p.m. from Bldg. T-126. For more, call 2-4138.

Toyland opens

The Flight Line Base Exchange is having their Toyland grand opening Saturday. Patrons can bring in all of their receipts from any AAFES facility to receive a $5 discount for every $100 they spent since Aug. 1. The discount is good for cash and carry items or layaways Saturday only. The discounts are limited to bikes and toys only.

School days

Approximately 400 students started school at the Lajes Elementary and High School Tuesday. School officials are reminding drivers to slow down when children are present. Parents are reminded to not drop their children off on the main road in front of the school. The drop off point is on the road behind the dental clinic. Everyone is reminded to follow instructions given by the crossing guards. (Photo by Staff Sgt. Olenda Kleffner)

Make DUI prevention a priority

Gen. Robert H. "Doc" Foglesong
Commander, U.S. Air Forces in Europe

RAMSTEIN AIR BASE, Germany (USAFENS) — There's nothing a commander hates more than calling or writing a family to tell them they've lost a son or daughter. In my thirty years of service, I've found nothing more painful and gut wrenching. Our great country has entrusted us with its most valuable resource - its sons and daughters. Commanders take very seriously their responsibility to protect their people. It's our highest priority.

Unfortunately, in my first week on the job at USAFE, we lost one of our own in a tragic car accident. It was a painful reminder that we have to put safety first - in the air and on the ground. Whether it's lost man-hours or lost lives, we cannot afford the high cost of ignoring safety. It's like the laws of nature - you don't break them, they break you! So stop and think before you put yourself in an unsafe position.

The number of DUIs in USAFE is troubling. In fact, it can be fatal to our personnel and their careers, so let's take action before these DUIs turn into terrible tragedies.

The beer over here has a higher alcohol content than we're used to, and the legal limits are lower - get the word out, don't assume you're safe to drive. If you have to think about it, you probably ought to hand over the keys or call for a ride. Commanders need to get out in front of this, and we need to look out for each other. The first step is prevention...

However, because DUIs are so costly both institutionally and personally, we also need a strategy of deterrence in our fight against DUIs. The first phase of this deterrence strategy will be random vehicle checks. In the near future we will start conducting random vehicle checks at all our USAFE bases. These vehicle checks are intended to show our commitment to reducing the number of DUIs throughout our command. Everyone must understand the ramifications of a DUI, while the ultimate punishment is up to the individual's commander based on the particular circumstances, a DUI could be a career ender. We can't afford to lose anyone from this great team of ours. Only through prevention and deterrence can we successfully execute our role as faithful custodians of our most valuable resource, the young men and women of America.

Aviano space-A stop gone

■ Rhein-Main will replace 'spaghetti run' landing spot Oct. 1

by Staff Sgt. Olenda Kleffner
Crossroads staff

Regular space-available travel from Lajes to Italy and Spain will end Oct. 1, while a new stop finds its way onto the weekly channel route.

The weekly "Patriot Express" L-1011 will no longer stop at Aviano AB, Italy, but the aircraft will land at Rhein Main AB, Germany, beginning with the Oct. 8 flight, according to Tech. Sgt. Tom Piott, NCO in charge of the wing's air terminal operations center.

The L-1011 will fly from Atlanta to Baltimore, Lajes, Rhein Main and Kuwait.

With the change to Rhein-Main, it's unclear how many seats there will be for bookings and space-A travel. However, there are multiple missions flying from straight from Baltimore to Rhein Main both before and after missions through Lajes, Piott said.

"Sometimes these direct flights run the same day, within a few hours before and after our flight," Piott said. "Looking throughout October and November, sometimes there are as many as three flights leaving Baltimore direct to Rhein Main per day."

With the additional flights from Baltimore to Rhein Main, there could be an increase in the seats available for space-A travelers from Lajes, Piott said. The downside is that none of those direct flights go to Kuwait; so seats will be lost to Kuwait bound passengers.

"We won't know the seating impact until the mission begins and runs for a few weeks, but I think our space-A seats will remain high, and (the change) may even provide us with more seats than before," Piott said.

News & Notes from Around the DOD and Air Force

Americans officially end era at PSAB

PRINCE SULTAN AIR BASE, Saudi Arabia (AFPN) — U.S. officials transferred control of portions of Prince Sultan Air Base to Saudi officials at a ceremony Aug. 26. The ceremony also marked the inactivation of the 363rd Air Expeditionary Wing.

Saudi government officials asked U.S. servicemembers to deploy to Saudi Arabia during the 1991 Gulf War.

The troops remained to enforce U.N. Security Council Resolution 688 — the no-fly zone south of the 33rd parallel over Iraq — until Operation Iraqi Freedom started March 19.

The base here became the center of the U.S. presence in the country in 1997 after the Khobar Towers bombing that killed 19 airmen and injured 400 others.

limited air-refueling mission operated here.

The base was home to about 60,000 coalition forces during the past seven years.

At the height of OIF, there were more than 5,000 troops and about 200 coalition aircraft based here.

The last Americans will complete the U.S. pullout in early September.

Airmen play in national exercise

NELLIS AIR FORCE BASE, Nev. (AFPN) — Operations, logistics and medical experts here continue to assist state and federal agencies in a simulated nation-wide battle against the pneumonic plague, wildfires and bad weather, which began Aug. 18.

The exercise, Determined Promise '03, was designed to test U.S. Northern Command's organizational structure and the military assistance to civil authorities mission.

The main focus of the exercise, which ends Aug. 28, is a simulated bio-terrorism event in Clark County, encompassing Las Vegas and Nellis Air Force Base.

The exercise began with local county authorities dealing with an outbreak of pneumonic plague.

Other disaster areas in the national exercise include fires throughout the Western states and a hurricane in the Southeast. On the first day of the exercise, the base received a stockpile of medical assets.

A team from the 99th Medical Group helped the team from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention break down the stockpile for distribution to various locations around the state.

"Typically, and depending on location, the stockpile is ... handled by a private company. Given the location and scenario, this exercise is providing us with a great opportunity to train with other state and federal agencies," said Lt. Col. Mark Deysher, 99th Medical Operations Squadron specialty flight commander here.

Meanwhile, a regular flight going to Naval Air Station Rota, Spain, is ending, according to 65th Medical Group officials.

With the retirement of the C-9 Nightingale, space-A travelers will have to find an alternate route to Rota, Spain. The once-a-week medical flight will stop Oct. 1, according to medical officials.

The 65th Medical Group is creating options for people to be seen at the clinic instead of having to leave the island, according to Staff Sgt. Eveline Kown, 65th Medical Operations Support Squadron aeromedical evacuation clerk.

Kown said while there will be some changes, everyone will still receive the care they need, and the process should be easy for everyone.

"The work centers for our active duty patients should feel a positive impact," she said. "The patients won't have to be gone for an extended period of time after their appointment while waiting for aeromedical transportation."

While the people here might not feel much of an impact medically, the real loss may be the handful of seats that gave space-available travelers a gateway opportunity to Spain.

Kown said a C-141 mission will still fly to and from Andrews AFB, Md., every two weeks in case additional medical care is needed.

For medical emergencies, a C-21 is on alert 24 hours a day.

Biscoitos holds annual wine festival Saturday

This year's edition of the wine festival will take place Saturday in the village of Biscoitos.

The wine festival will kick off at 2 p.m. with a parade between the wine museum and the vineyards located next to the seafront, where participants will be invited to help with the picking of the grapes.

Following that, the parade will head back to the wine museum where participants can crush the grapes with their bare feet inside a tank, the same way it used to be done many years ago.

Visitors will also have the opportunity to taste the new wine juice that flows from the wine presses.

Members of a local folklore group dressed with old traditional costumes will also participate in these events and perform throughout the afternoon.

The wine festival is open to everybody who wishes to participate or watch and is organized by the Angra's branch of the National Institute for the Occupation of Leisure Times in cooperation with the wine museum in the village of Biscoitos and the Altares Town's Council.

Once the stockpile was shipped from the base, the exercise focus shifted to Naval Air Station Fallon and the Clark County Fairgrounds in Logandale, Nev.

National Guard units from Nevada and Arizona, state, county and city officials will respond to a simulated terrorist laboratory and dispense medication.

The exercise is a great opportunity for the various agencies to test internal procedures, but more importantly works to interact on processes and communications among the different agencies, said Bob Jones, Nellis AFB exercise coordinator.

"We're strengthening our own processes through training opportunities we wouldn't normally have — a chance to (fine-tune) some of our existing emergency (checklists)," he said.

F-15E crew buried in Arlington

WASHINGTON (AFPN) — Two F-15E Strike Eagle crewmembers killed in action during Operation Iraqi Freedom were buried in Arlington National Cemetery with full honors Aug. 29.

Capt. Eric B. Das, aircraft commander, and Lt. Col. William R. Watkins III, weapon systems officer, were killed April 7 when their aircraft went down during a combat mission over Iraq. They were assigned to the 333rd Fighter Squadron from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C. Das, 30, was from Amarillo, Texas, and Watkins, 37, was from Danville, Va.

Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. John P. Jumper presented flags to the widows of the two fliers, Maj. Mary M. Watkins and Capt. Nicole C. Das. Four F-15Es from the 4th Fighter Wing flew in a missing-man formation as a final tribute.

Satellite launches in Florida

CAPE CANAVERAL AIR FORCE STATION, Fla. (AFPN) — The last Phase III Defense Satellite Communications System launched on board a Delta IV rocket from here Aug. 29.

The satellite system will operate for the next 15 years and replaces another that was launched in 1995, according to 45th Space Wing officials.

The Department of Defense satellite system enables commanders to communicate from the battlefield to other defense officials worldwide.

The data can be transmitted to Army ground units, Air Force airborne terminals and naval vessels.

The satellite cost nearly $210 million and is one of 12 in orbit at an altitude of more than 22,000 miles.

It weighs 2,716 pounds, is 6 feet long, 6 feet high and 7 feet wide. When its solar arrays are fully extended, it will have a 38-foot wingspan.

This model offers a 200-percent increase in communications capacity from the existing satellites, according to officials.

The 50th SW at Schriever Air Force Base, Colo., monitors and operates the satellite constellation.

Jumper talks about changes

by Airman Christie Jurgens
92nd Air Refueling Wing
Public Affairs

FAIRCHILD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash. (AFPN) — Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. John Jumper talked to airmen here about upcoming changes in the Air Force during a visit to the base Aug. 22.

He shared his thoughts on the new fitness program, the new uniform, deployment issues and the acquisition of new tankers.

All of these changes were brought on by the transition to a more expeditionary Air Force, Jumper said. The transition to a new fitness program gets back to the basics with a 1.5 mile run, push-ups and sit-ups.

"We can run, do push-ups and sit-ups anywhere; it's not practical to bring a bicycle with you on a deployment," he said. "I don't think there's a person out there who actually likes the bike test. I know I don't."

Jumper also talked about new physical training gear to be introduced in January.

"We are going to try to take advantage of some of the new moisture-control fabrics without having them cost too much," he said. "What we are trying to do is make them part of the kit (airmen) get when they come out of basic training, but when you go to replace them, I don't want you having to pay $40 for a shirt."

Another major change in the fitness program will be to place responsibility on the chain of command to ensure physical standards are met.

"I want the squadrons to help each other take the ... test," Jumper said.

Another change the Air Force is researching is a replacement for the current battle dress uniform.

"Anyone who wears the current uniform knows the first time you take it to the dry cleaners that will be the last time any air passes through it. And a lot of times we find ourselves out on ramps in 115-degree temperatures," he said.

Researchers are experimenting with the same materials the Marines use in their new uniforms.

"With the borrowing of the material, we also borrow the durability and wash-and-wear characteristics, which saves our people money," said Jumper.

"Right now we are still in the test stages," he said. "We are still playing with the different camouflage patterns."

Three hundred uniforms are being tested in hot and cold conditions, and the people doing the testing and suggesting the improvements are airmen doing their jobs out in the field, Jumper said.

"All I ask is that you give (them) a try, and then decide if you like them or not," he said.

Both of these changes are designed to make deployments more comfortable for airmen and increase productivity, Jumper said.

Jumper said a return to the normal air and space expeditionary force cycles is in sight.

"We have two 120-day cycles that are planned right now," he said. "That should get all of our reconstitution done, give people time to catch their breath, and then we should start back into the normal cycle in March."

He added that there would be modifications to the current procedures, but generally the changes are going to continue to make life easier for airmen.

Another change senior leaders are studying is how the service branches can better work together, Jumper said.

"It's a matter of taking a conscious look at what the real requirements and the real threats are, and responding to those," Jumper said.

Addressing the proposed lease of new aerial refueling aircraft, the general said if the deal is closed, he is confident the transition will be quick.

Air Force officials selected, and the Defense Department has approved, the Boeing 767 as its tanker candidate.

The new aircraft will be able to deliver 20 percent more fuel than the 43-year-old KC-135E model.

It can be refueled in flight and has the capability to refuel Air Force, Navy, Marine and allied aircraft on every mission.

"We should be able to do the same mission with fewer airplanes, and we don't take away the crews, so the crew ratios will be higher," he said.

"If you have a higher crew ratio, you get an airplane that is more reliable (and is) available more of the time, and we should be able to make this job easier even if the ops tempo stays high," Jumper said.

The new fitness program, the new uniform, the potential integration of the newest tanker into the fleet and other changes in the forecast shows the Air Force is continually improving itself for its airmen, Jumper said.

"We have proven in our recent battles that we are the world's greatest Air Force," he said. "And, while it may be tough to constantly improve the best, the Air Force continues to do so."

CALL 2-4240

The Action Line is your means of addressing a problem, concern or challenge to me about something in the 65th Air Base Wing or U.S. Forces Azores.

However, your chain of command should always be your first option. When that's not the answer, then call the Action Line at 2-4240 and I'll address it as quickly and with care. Thank you!

Involvement, programs key to success, vigilance at Lajes

Crossroads staff

Security police officials at Lajes are looking for base residents to get involved with crime prevention, amplify deterrence measures already in place and bolster the existing services.

More than a half-dozen programs are already in place while joint Portuguese and American patrols roam housing areas. However, several other programs exist to bolster crime prevention at Lajes, according to Staff Sgt. Jerome Worthington, the NCO in charge of the 65th Security Forces Squadron's crime prevention section.

"Crime prevention works best when everyone is involved," Worthington said. "With housing patrols, the community can rest easier at night. However, there is always room for improvement."

Worthington said crime is down from March and April. "We've had our ups and downs this year," he said. "Theft is probably our biggest problem."

Specifically, Worthington said theft from unlocked cars is constant. One of the focus areas for the thefts is near the youth center, Bldg. T-240. He added that unlocked trash and recyclable storage areas in housing are also targets for thieves.

"The patrols in housing have really brought the crime down," he said.

The housing patrols are Portuguese contractors. Worthington said they can be identified in their light blue shirt and dark pants.

Worthington outlined seven programs to help keep children safe, houses protected while their residents are away and more. They include:

■ Neighborhood Watch.

This volunteer group patrols base housing areas to "deter crime, keep children safe and maintain order in housing areas," according to Worthington. Volunteers act as a "second set of eyes and ears" and are in direct contact with the security defense coordination center, formerly called the law enforcement desk, he said. Neighborhood Watch patrols walk in housing areas from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., Fridays and Saturdays. Call 2-3611 to join.

■ Crime Stop. "This is an important key to any successful crime prevention," Worthington said. Crime Stop encourages residents to report suspicious activities immediately by dialing 911 from an on-base phone, or 295-57-1911 off base. Residents can also call security

How you can help

Worthing said the key to Lajes residents' safety and security is involvement. Some of the key programs to get people involved with crime prevention include:

- Neighborhood Watch
- Operation Identification
- Safe House
- Operation Ident-i-Kid
- Crime Stop
- Operation House Watch

forces at 2-3222. Worthington said when reporting thefts or crimes from Beira Mar, Nascor Del Sol and Lower T housing, residents must file a report with the city of Praia police department. "Filing a report with the Praia police and security forces increases the chances of property being returned," Worthington added.

■ Operation House Watch. Used for people who go on temporary duty assignments or leave for extended periods. Those leaving can fill out a form with security forces officials.

The cops will then do a daily walk around the outside of the Beira Mar, Nascor Del Sol, Lower or Upper T house.

■ Operation Ident-A-Kid.

Provides a booklet to parents where they can keep a child's fingerprints, a photo and other information. Parents can get booklets at Bldg. T-815 by appointment. Call 2-3645 for more.

■ Safe House. This program trains people to offer safe havens for people who feel they may be in danger from domestic violence or children who feel they may be in abusive situation, Worthington said. He added that the program is in need of volunteers. For more, call 2-3645.

■ Operation Identification. Allows residents to use an engraver to mark property. Worthington recommended using a personal-identification number and ensuring high-value item serial numbers are recorded on an Air Force Form 1670. Interested users can get the engraver and the forms from Bldg. T-815.

■ Home Security Survey.

Worthington will come to an off-base house and check locks on doors and windows. He'll also inspect how well exterior lighting contributes to deterring thieves. Call 2-3645 to set up a visit.

For CES, other teams, this season will be won ...

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Tech. Sgt. Jason Tudor

When new CE flag football coach Clinton Jordan sees old coach Rich Williamson around Lajes, Jordan must just shake his head and smile.

That's because Jordan is trying staring back at Williamson's undefeated 2003 season that ended in the 65th Civil Engineering Squadron's 28-12 championship victory over JAMS — and wondering how to repeat.

"You're not going to see a 17-0 season too often," said Jordan. "That was a great team that had a lot of great games."

CE and eight other teams hit the gridiron this fall starting Monday. AMS, Comm, JAMS, LRS, MedGp, OSS, SFS, and the high school play a schedule of 16 games this season.

With two RAF Lakenheath, England base championship titles as coach, Jordan's taken each practice as an opportunity for growth. He said the team lost a number of players to permanent-change-of-station moves, but it's still ready to play.

"We've got a lot of talent. We've just got to learn to play together," he said.

Key losses include wide receivers/defensive backs Marwan Mixon and André Fortenberry as well as mobile quarterback Bobby Roe. Jordan said his team could overcome the losses and still make the playoffs — if the defense improves.

"The defense needs attention," he said.

"Our defensive line needs to be able to get to the quarterback. If we disrupt the quarterback enough, they can't make passes."

In a JAMS

Lajes' No. 2 team from last season is also hunkering down for the season-long campaign. Ernie Bailey takes over for fiery coach leader Robin Bailey, whose rocket arm and quick legs PCS'd to Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio. JAMS won nine straight to reach the title game in 2002.

The new Bailey said "Big Blue" is adjusting to the changes. He said new quarterback Josh Clark has a strong arm and can get the ball to receivers. Receivers are picking up the new offense, he said. The key now, the new coach said, is receptions.

"You have to catch footballs," he said.

"We've also got to play the same tough-minded defense we played last year."

Experience helps

How do you beat a coach who owns his own semi-pro football team, the Okaloosa Knights of Florida? That's what many coaches could be asking this season if LRS's Luis Lopez manages to meld his four base-championship titles and 26 years of gridiron knowledge into a winning attitude.

"We've really been working on our offense," Lopez said. "We're hoping our guys will gel together in a short period of time."

Lopez said he had 14 players signed up, but only about 10 have shown up to practices. He's learning to coach an eight-player team, not the seven- or nine-player squads he's used to working with. He said he doesn't think he'll be out coached and "there shouldn't be a strategy I haven't seen and cannot adjust to and capitalized upon." That, he said, should make his team better than its 2002 fourth-place finish.

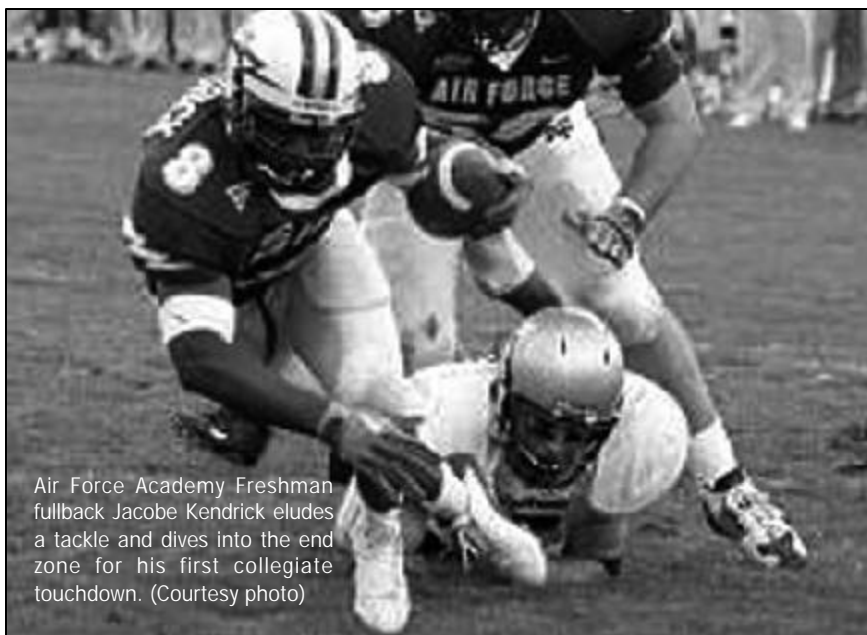

"The championship is always a goal," he said. "It would be a high point for this year. We're definitely going to do better than fourth."

Comm and get it

Meanwhile, other teams wait in the wings for a shot at the title. Comm is shoring up its defensive line, working on offense and put the final touches on what new coach Derrick Woodard believes is a championship group.

"Things have been going good in practice," said Woodard, who coached a team to a third-place ranking at Lackland AFB, Texas. "We've added a couple of players in skill positions, but we've got to mesh. We're

Falcons smash small college 49-0

Air Force Print News

U.S. AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. -- Fullback Dan Shaffer dove one yard to score the go-ahead points and give head coach Fisher DeBerry his 150th career win in a 49-0 shutout of Wofford College on Aug. 30.

Shaffer returned from last year's season-ending knee injury to score a career-high three touchdowns, as the Academy Falcon fullbacks ran for 170 yards and five touchdowns.

Junior fullback Adam Cole notched his second career touchdown, while freshman fullback Jacobe Kendrick crossed the goal line for his first career score and injured fullback Steve Massie got to douse his head coach with ice-cold water to celebrate the win.

Shaffer was also heavily into the celebration during each of his touchdowns.

"I was thrilled to death. I was jumping around like a little 8 year old who scored his first touchdown," Shaffer said. "Usually, I'm pretty calm. I just give the ball to the ref, and go to the sideline with the team. It was awesome.

"Coach (DeBerry) is a great guy, great man, great coach," he said. "I think there's a lot of guys in the locker room who'd die for the man if he asked them. We know he's been through it. We know he's experienced and he knows what he's talking about, and he's a good motivator."

For Shaffer, this game also marked a successful return from his knee injury.

"I don't think any of us realized the tremendous sacrifice he's made for this team," DeBerry said. "I've never been around a guy who was any more determined to come back."

DeBerry's 150th career victory came at the expense of his alma mater, where he played linebacker, flanker and defensive back during his collegiate years.

"I don't care whether you play the Sisters of the Poor or you're playing in Podunk Holler, whoever you're playing, to shut a team out in modern-day college football ... says an awful lot about our defense," DeBerry said.

balanced, but we need to learn teamwork."

For this season, Woodard said he feels like the weapons are in place for a better-than-third-place finish.

Going deep into the bench

MedGp coach Josh Tatu is a tad discouraged. He said he was handed the season schedule Monday. Now he is trying to get all his players to come together — to practice.

"We haven't really practiced so that's the biggest challenge," Tatu said. "I'd like to get a team together to play. We've got interested people. Now, I've got to motivate them to show up each week."

The MedGp finished in the middle of the pack last season. Tatu said attention to the defense and ensuring he can pull a crew together would be a good step forward.

"We've got to get turnovers and score points," he said. "Hopefully, we can pull it together and start the season right."

Sports Radio

Local 'Waterboys' carries the pail Saturdays

Crossroads staff

Intramural and professional sports score big in a new radio talk show to air this weekend on Island 96 where callers will drive the conversation.

"The Waterboys" runs from 10 a.m.-noon, Saturdays and is hosted by Joshua Gray and Ryan Spear.

According to Gray, the show will include live interviews with intramural coaches and discussion of all things sports at Lajes. The show will also serve as a platform to discuss sports of any kind from around the world.

Gray said listeners are encouraged to call the show, get involved and "make it as interesting a three hours as we can."

"I think it will work because all you have to do is walk around base and you see everyone sporting their team gear. People in the military flat out love sports," Gray added. "I have yet to meet someone who loves their team who doesn't love talking or debating. I am sure if we give folks an avenue to talk sports, they will."

Gray, the anchor of AFN Lajes' nightly television newscast, is also motivated.

"I am very excited to be starting it. Sports talk radio is just about the only thing I listen to when I am in the states, and I love sports personally," he said. "Bottom line: sports talk radio is my dream job, and I am thrilled at the chance of being able to do it for once."

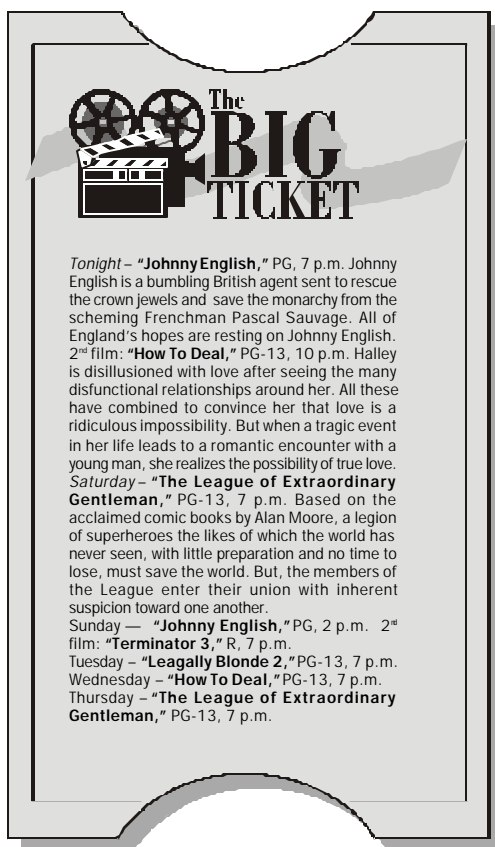

The phone number for the show is 295-57-3475 or on base at 2-3475.
